MULTIDISCIPLINARY ARRHYTHMIA MEETING

WELCOME

The first Multidisciplinary Arrhythmia Meeting, focused on the Atrial Fibrillation Heart Team, will take place on September 15-16 2016 at the ETH in Zurich.

The course will deal with hybrid strategies to manage atrial fibrillation and will be the first of its kind.

Today, with a constantly growing prevalence of atrial fibrillation, we are facing an increasing need for a better quality of life and functional capacity that conventional tools fail to provide with acceptable efficacy.

Multidisciplinary Arrhythmia Team cooperation, until recently little more than a way to communicate between clinical counterparts, is now the goal for many key centers Internationally. Hybrid approaches to AF are now the guiding theme of scientific institutions.

The way to success in this attractive field is to boost the interaction between cardiologists and surgeons, locally and at an institutional level.

The goal of the upcoming Multidisciplinary Arrhythmia Meeting is to provide clinicians, electrophysiologists and surgeons with multiple examples of cooperating modes in dealing with atrial fibrillation.

Cardiologists and surgeons from leading institutions in Europe, US and Asia will explain their reasons in favor of hybrid simultaneous, hybrid staged and multidisciplinary sequential approaches, and will report their results with the different existing platforms.

We will deliver a highly interactive experience for clinicians, EP cardiologists and surgeons, through live cases, live in a box, technology parades, key note lectures and thematic symposia on the available technologies.

We are confident that all of these fascinating features will make MAM 2016 an interesting and unforgettable event.

We look forward to welcoming you in Zurich
